Alexander Schuchmann - DoP

Alex Schuchmann is a German cinematographer, editor, and publisher based between Amsterdam and Berlin. His passion for photography and storytelling began to flourish already in his teenage years when he was portraying his friends and people closest to him. Shooting and developing black and white 16mm film in Italy during his film studies sparked his enthusiasm and love for film.

In 2017 he teamed up with director Jan Eric Huehn to create documentaries, music videos, and commercials under the acronym “Hometown”. They are connected by their origin, friendship, and a shared passion to make stories become film.

Today Alex is creating films both as a freelance DP and as a part of the duo “Hometown”, always looking for new challenges, creative souls and innovative ways of storytelling. His desire to discover the world through the viewfinder is his greatest motivation.

As social and fun as he can be, his creativity blossoms when he has some time for himself, where he can structure his thoughts and just drift off. Surfing, reading, photography, and traveling are his favorite activities for that.
